INTRODUCTION

The article is a word which syntactic function is to determine a noun. There are two main articles in English – the definite article “the” and the indefinite article having two forms “a”, “an”.

The indefinite article originates from the cardinal numeral “one” and is used only before singular countable nouns. The form “a” occurs before nouns beginning with a consonant sound (not letter) while the form “an” before nouns beginning with a vowel sound. It is usually not stressed and pronounced like [ə] and [ən]:

a cat [ə 'kæt] an apple [ən 'æpl]
a unit [ə 'ju:nɪt] an X-ray [ən 'eks'reɪ]

NOTE! When stressed the indefinite article is pronounced [eɪ] and [æɪn].

The definite article developed from a demonstrative pronoun and may be used before singular countable and uncountable nouns as well as before plural nouns. It also has two variants of pronunciation [ðə] before nouns beginning with a consonant sound and [ði:] before nouns beginning with a vowel sound:

the cat [ðə 'kæt] the apple [ði 'æpl]
the unit [ðə 'ju:nɪt] the X-ray [ði 'eks'reɪ]

The stressed form is [ði:], the unstressed is [ðə].

The choice of the right article depends on the kind of noun the article modifies. Here is the semantic classification of nouns that determines the structure of this book:

EXERCISES

1. Use the correct article “a” or “an” with the following nouns:

elephant	one-hour lesson	CD
university	useful book	exam school
umbrella	SOS	busy life
VIP	European	answer
honest woman	hand	MP
half-hour meeting	underpass	person

2. Pronounce correctly [ðə] or [ði:]

apple	hour	honest answer
red apple	situation	yacht
year	European city	airplane horse	engineer	opera
accident	auto	hot evening

3. Classify the following nouns:

Model: An apple is a countable concrete noun.

Wine is an uncountable noun of material (name of substance).

difficulty	a celebrity	a horse
love	the police	California
the Catholics	the Riviera	the French
a sail	New York	sugar
betrayal	an experience	milk
a child	coal	Elle
water	Margaret	chocolate
an effort	a lion	snow
the elite	a thing	sand
the peasantry	a hare	literature
a flower	a computer	beauty
a discussion	experience	an opportunity

There's a black sheep in every flock.

This is a friend of mine.

But. It is the novel our teacher mentioned last time.

The definite article is used:

1. When the situation itself makes the object definite (the speaker and the listener know what particular object is meant).

The exam was very tense. The lecturer was very strict and the students were nervous.*

The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence.*

2. When the speaker uses an attribute pointing out a particular object – a particularizing attribute.

This is the house that Jack built. The pictures in this book are very interesting.

Note! A particularizing attribute shouldn't be confused with a descriptive attribute which gives additional information about the object.

I have got an interesting film which was directed by S. Mikhalkov.

He went to the forest where a lot of birds were singing.

3. When nouns are used in a generic sense (as a type or genre).

The horse was domesticated many centuries ago.*

The computer microchip was invented in 1958.*

Note! With the nouns man, mankind, humanity no article is used.

What shall we tell mankind? Man is helpless in this case.

With the noun woman the definite article or no article is used.

Only (the) woman could do it.

4. With nouns modified by:

a) some adjectives (same, all, wrong, right, very, next, last, following, only, whole, main, principle, central, present, former, latter, necessary, opposite, previous, lower, upper, usual, so-called):

Had Gooch not been injured in the last two games.

The only virtue of the latter newspaper techniques is to bring an event to the attention of a reader.*

Note! No article is used when nouns day, night, morning, afternoon, week, and year are modified by the adjective next denoting future and last denoting past.

I'll be back next week.

b) adjectives in the superlative degree:

Dracula is the most popular film character. There are over 160 Dracula films.

c) ordinal numerals:

My flat is on the fifth floor.

5. With substantivized adjectives and participles (the rich, the old, the wounded etc.)
There's one law for the rich and another for the poor.
6. With collective singular nouns denoting social classes, social groups, nationalities (the public, the peasantry, the British etc.)
What are the British like?
7. With the words the country, the mountains, the seaside, the weekend, the cinema, the theatre, the police, the army, the post office, the bank, the doctor, the dentist though we don't mean some particular object or person.
He went to the police to claim that he had been robbed.

The Seasons

WIKIPEDIA

There is ... popular misconception that ... seasons on ... Earth are caused by varying distances of ... Earth from ... Sun on its elliptical orbit. This is not correct. One way to see that this reasoning may be in error is to note that ... seasons are out of phase in ... Northern and Southern hemispheres: when it is ... summer in the North it is ... winter in the South.

... primary cause of ... seasons is the 23.5 degree of ... Earth's rotation axis.

This means that as ... Earth goes around its orbit.

... Northern hemisphere is at various times oriented more toward and more away from ... Sun, and likewise for ... Southern hemisphere. Thus, we experience ... summer in ... Northern Hemisphere when ... Earth is on that part of its orbit where ... Northern Hemisphere is oriented more toward ... Sun and therefore ... Sun rises higher in ... sky and ... rays of ... Sun strike ... ground more directly. Likewise, in ... Northern Hemisphere winter ... hemisphere is oriented away from ... Sun, ... Sun only rises low in ... sky, is above ... horizon for ... shorter period, and ... rays of ... Sun strike ... ground more obliquely.

In fact ... Earth is actually closer to ... Sun in ... Northern Hemisphere winter than in ... summer. ... Earth is at its closest approach to ... Sun on about January 4 of each year, which is the dead of ... Northern Hemisphere winter.

... seasons in ... Southern Hemisphere are determined from ... same reasoning, except that they are out of phase with ... Northern Hemisphere seasons because when ... Northern Hemisphere is oriented toward ... Sun ... Southern Hemisphere is oriented away, and vice versa.

... date at which each season begins depends on how it is defined. In the United States, ... seasons are often considered to begin at ... astronomical solstices and equinoxes. By this reckoning, ... summer begins at summer solstice, ... winter at winter solstice, ... spring at the vernal equinox and autumn at the autumnal equinox.

The United Kingdom has no hard and fast rules about seasons, but most follow the equinoxes and solstices. However, informally many people use three calendar months for each season with ... spring being March, April and May, etc. It is interesting to note that historically ... seasons were considered to begin about seven weeks earlier than the astronomical seasons.

... Irish calendar uses almost ... same reckoning: ... spring begins on February 1, ... summer on May 1, ... autumn on August 1 and ... winter on November 1.

In meteorology for ... Northern hemisphere, ... spring begins by convention on March 1, ... summer on June 1, ... autumn on September 1 and ... winter on December 1. Conversely, for ... Southern hemisphere, ... meteorological summer begins on December 1, ... autumn on March 1, ... winter on June 1 and ... spring on September 1.

... Korean, Chinese, and Japanese calendars are based on ... lunisolar calendar, where ... solstices and equinoxes mark ... middle of each season. This is very close to ... British and Irish definitions of seasons.

4. Read the information about dangerous diseases. Prepare a report about any disease and tell the class.

According to World Health Organization the top ten killer diseases are primarily Third World, celebrity-free, low visibility killers of children. They are acute respiratory tract infections, diarrheal diseases (cholera, typhoid, and dysentery.), tuberculosis, hepatitis B, HIV/AIDS, measles, neonatal tetanus , whooping cough and intestinal worms.

Model. Perhaps the most dangerous and publicized disease is AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome.. It is the terminal phase of HIV (human immunodeficiency virus.. HIV is usually the precursor to AIDS, and then the victim succumbs to death by cancer, pneumonia and other diseases that attack the weakened human immune system.

The condition was first noticed by doctors at the very end of the seventies and was described under the name acquired immune deficiency state in 1980, although later research has shown that a person died from Aids as long ago as 1959 and that the virus which causes it may have existed in Africa for a hundred years or more. At first AIDS was identified as principally affecting two groups: first, drug users who shared needles, and second, male homosexuals, giving rise to the unkind name "gay plague", which was widely bandied about in newspapers during the mid eighties. But very soon the list of people at risk from AIDS lengthened...

Three Famous Prisons

WIKIPEDIA

Devil's Island is probably the most notorious prison in the world in terms of the harshness of its regime and position. The island is situated in the Atlantic off the coast of French Guiana and was in use from 1852 to 1946. Its most famous prisoner was Captain Alfred Dreyfus, a French army officer, who was (wrongly) convicted of espionage and imprisoned here from 1894 to 1899 though he was not finally cleared of all charges until 1906. It is now a launching site for space satellites.

Alcatraz ("The Rock". is sited on an island in San Francisco Bay. It was built for the military in the 1850's and used by them, as a fort and a prison until 1933 when it passed to the Department for Justice and became a civil prison until it was closed in 1963. Its most famous prisoner was Al Capone. It is now a tourist attraction.

Château d'If is a fortress built on the rocky isle of If. It is 2 miles off the French port of Marseilles which it was intended to guard against a seaward attack. It was built from 1524 to 1531, and then in 1580 it was taken into use as a state prison for those convicted of serious political and religious crimes. Its most famous (fictional!) prisoner was Edmund Dantès. It is now a tourist attraction as well as the Rock.

MERCURIUS: ROMAN WINGED MESSENGER OF THE GODS

... Mercury has been known since ancient times. Its elusiveness generated ... name Hermes, given by ... Greeks, later translated to Mercurius by ... Romans. Mercury is the rarely seen planet because of ... Sun's glare. With less than half Earth's gravity, ... Mercury retains only a wisp of an atmosphere (presumed to be helium.. The lack of a significant atmosphere allows temperatures to fluctuate from 750 degrees Fahrenheit during the day to minus 320 Fahrenheit at night. ... Mercury is made mostly of rock and metal. This small world is scarred by craters and looks somewhat like ... Moon.

VENUS: ROMAN GODDESS OF LOVE AND BEAUTY

... Greeks believed ... Venus was two separate objects – one in the morning sky and another in the evening. .. Venus has generated many UFO reports because it is often brighter than any other object in the sky. While all of the planets orbit in an ellipse, ... Venus' orbit is the closest to a perfect circle. It is the only planet in the solar system whose day (241 Earth days. is longer than its year (225 Earth days.. The surface of ... Venus is mostly a rocky desert. Like ... Mercury, ... Earth and ... Mars, ... Venus is composed of mostly rock and metal.

MARS

The fourth planet from the sun has always captivated our imagination. While scientists haven't proven there's any life, not even the microscopic variety, the dusty red planet still commands our attention (and a lot of space missions.. Like ... Mercury, ... Venus and ... Earth, ... Mars is mostly rock and metal. The dust, an iron oxide, gives the planet its reddish cast. Researchers have recently monitored huge storms swirling on ... Mars. The storms are very similar to hurricanes on ... Earth. ... Mars has two moons, ... Phobos and ... Deimos. ... Mars was most likely warm and wet about 3.7 billion years ago. But as the planet cooled, the water froze. Remnants exist as ice caps at the poles. A recent image of ... Mars taken by ... Hubble Space Telescope shows evidence of water-bearing minerals in large amounts, and scientists say the deposits may provide clues to the planet's water-rich background. It has not yet been proven that there is life on ... Mars. ... NASA announcement in 1996 about microscopic life found in a meteorite has failed to convince skeptics, and the search continues. The apparent odd motion of ... Mars as seen from ... Earth stumped scientists for centuries, finally leading in the early 1600's to the notion that planets orbited the sun in an elliptical pattern. ... Percival Lowell, ... amateur astronomer who studied ... Mars into the early 1900s, thought he saw canals that must have been dug by inhabitants. Upon closer examination with modern telescopes and planetary probes, they turned out to be optical illusions.

JUPITER: RULER OF THE ROMAN GODS, ALSO JOVE

... Jupiter was believed by Mesopotamians to be a wandering star placed in the heavens by a god to watch over the night sky. In 1610, ... Galileo Galilei used a telescope to observe three "stars" around ... Jupiter. Over several nights he observed these "stars," but each night they were in different positions, leading to his conclusion that they were bodies orbiting the giant planet. The fifth planet from the sun is a huge ball of gas so massive it could hold all the other planets put together. What we can see of the planet are bands of the highest clouds in a thick atmosphere of hydrogen and helium. Traces of other gases produce the bright bands of color. At ...Jupiter's center is a core of rock many times the mass of ... Earth. ... Jupiter has thin, barely perceptible rings and at least 16 satellites. The four largest – ... Io, ... Europa, ... Ganymede and ... Callisto – are called ... Galilean moons. They orbit in the same plane and are all visible in a telescope.

SATURN

Much like its neighbor Jupiter, the sixth planet from the sun has a rocky core and a gaseous surface. ... Saturn has 18 known satellites, made mostly of ice and rock. The largest, ... Titan, orbits ... Saturn every 16 days and is visible through a good-sized amateur telescope. ... Titan, which is larger than ... planet Mercury, has a thick atmosphere that obscures its surface. Though researchers aren't sure how many moons Saturn has, the total is likely at least 20, and may be much higher. When ... Galileo Galilei first studied Saturn in the early 1600s, he thought it was an object with three parts. Not knowing he was seeing a planet with rings, the stumped astronomer made a small drawing – a symbol with one large circle and two smaller ones – in his notebook. Debate raged for more than 40 years about these "ears," until ... Christian Huygens proposed that they were rings. ... Giovanni Domenico Cassini later discovered a gap between the rings, which gained his name, and he also proposed that the rings were not solid objects, but rather made of small particles.

URANUS: PERSONIFICATION OF HEAVEN IN ANCIENT MYTH

... Uranus was thought to be a star until William Herschel discovered in 1781 that it orbited ... Sun. The seventh planet from the sun is much like its gaseous neighbors, with a cloudy surface, rapid winds, and a small rocky core. ... Uranus has numerous satellites and a faint set of rings. If all the possible satellites being studied are confirmed, ... Uranus would have 16 regular and five irregular moons, making it the most populated planetary satellite system known.

NEPTUNE: ROMAN GOD OF WATER

The eighth planet from ... Sun has a rocky core surrounded by ice, hydrogen, helium and methane. Like the other gas planets, ... Neptune has rapidly swirling winds, but it is thought to contain a deep ocean of water. The planet has a faint set of rings and 8 known moons. Because of ... Pluto's strange orbit, ... Neptune is sometimes the most distant planet from the Sun. Since 1979, ... Neptune was the ninth planet from ... Sun. On February 11, 1999, it crossed ... Pluto's path and once again become the eighth planet from the Sun, where will remain for 228 years. ... Neptune was discovered in 1846 after mathematical calculations of ... Uranus' movements predicted the existence of another large body.

PLUTO: ROMAN GOD OF THE UNDERWORLD

... Pluto is a cold, dark and frozen place. Relatively little is known about this tiny planet with the strange orbit. Its composition is presumed to be rock and ice, with a thin atmosphere of nitrogen, carbon monoxide and methane. ... Pluto was not discovered until 1930, by ... amateur American astronomer Clyde Tombaugh. Since ... Tombaugh's death in 1997, many astronomers have increasingly urged ... International Astronomical Union, which names celestial objects, to strip ... Pluto of its status as a planet. After a news report generated a flurry of irate e-mails about the possible change, officials assured the world that ... Pluto would remain a planet. But it will also likely become the first in a new class of celestial object known as ... TNO, or ... Trans-Neptunian Object. It seems ... Pluto may then have a sort of dual citizenship.

European Union

The European Union (EU) was established after the 2nd World War. France officially undertook the establishment of the EU proposing to create "the first concrete foundation of a European federation". On May 9, 1950 the EU was created and initially six European countries joined to the EU: Belgium, Germany, France, Italy, Luxemburg, and the Netherlands. Then 9 countries joined to the EU and today the number of the member countries is 15 (later joined Denmark, Ireland, the United Kingdom, Greece, Spain, Portugal, Austria, Finland, and Sweden. (European Union.. The EU today is preparing for the accession of 13 European countries – Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Estonia, Cyprus, Latvia, Lithuania, Hungary, Malta, Poland, Romania, Slovenia, Slovakia, and Turkey. In order to join the EU, these countries need to fulfill the economic and political requirements, which in other terms called "Copenhagen criteria". Those requirements are mainly related to the following:

- member countries must be a stable democracy, respecting human rights, the rule of law, and the protection of minorities;
- member countries must have a functioning market economy;
- member countries adopt the common rules, standards and policies that make up the body of EU law.

President George W. Bush's Monday night televised address to the nation:

My fellow citizens, events in ... Iraq have now reached the final days of decision.

For more than a decade, ... United States and other nations have pursued patient and honorable efforts to disarm ... Iraqi regime without war. That regime pledged to reveal and destroy all of its weapons of mass destruction as a condition for ending ... Persian Gulf War in 1991.

Since then, the world has engaged in 12 years of diplomacy. We have passed more than a dozen resolutions in ... United Nations Security Council. We have sent hundreds of weapons inspectors to oversee the disarmament of ... Iraq.

Our good faith has not been returned. ... Iraqi regime has used diplomacy as a ploy to gain time and advantage. It has uniformly defied ... Security Council resolutions demanding full disarmament. [...]

Last September, I went to ... U.N. General Assembly and urged the nations of the world to unite and bring an end to this danger. On ... November 8th, ... Security Council unanimously passed ... Resolution 1441, finding ... Iraq in material breach of its obligations and vowing serious consequences if ... Iraq did not fully and immediately disarm.

Today, no nation can possibly claim that ... Iraq has disarmed. And it will not disarm so long as ... Saddam Hussein holds power.

For the last four and a half months, ... United States and our allies have worked within ... Security Council to enforce that council's longstanding demands. Yet some permanent members of ... Security Council have publicly announced that they will veto any resolution that compels the disarmament of ... Iraq. These governments share our assessment of the danger, but not our resolve to meet it. [...]

It is too late for ... Saddam Hussein to remain in power. It is not too late for ... Iraq military to act with honor and protect your country, by permitting the peaceful entry of coalition forces to eliminate weapons of mass destruction. Our forces will give ... Iraqi military units clear instructions on actions they can take to avoid being attack and destroyed.

I urge every member of the Iraqi military and intelligence services: If war comes, do not fight for a dying regime that is not worth your own life. [...]

... United States with other countries will work to advance liberty and peace in that region. Our goal will not be achieved overnight, but it can come over time. The power and appeal of human liberty is felt in every life and every land, and the greatest power of freedom is to overcome hatred and violence, and turn the creative gifts of men and women to the pursuits of peace. That is the future we choose.

Free nations have a duty to defend our people by uniting against the violent, and tonight, as we have done before, ... America and our allies accept that responsibility.

Good night, and may God continue to bless ... America.
